LOGLINE

A young cryptozoologist hunts the legendary El Chupacabra in hopes of collecting a $50,000 reward with the help of his estranged best friend and his childhood crush.

SYNOPSIS

It's been eight years since Pete Mackey and his "Chupacabra Club" swore a blood oath to defend their tiny Texas town from El Chupacabra. When townsfolk start to disappear again, Pete reunites his childhood gang to honor the promise they made to "rid the town of the beast."

The crew's pursuit of El Chupacabra leads them to a secret underground compound right beneath their town and pits them against an elite squad of mercenaries deployed by a shadowy global corporation bent on world domination. Pete's team must square off against the soldiers, destroy the Chupacabra and save the town.

The Legend of El Chupacabra is a sci-fi horror-comedy inspired by classic 80s films like "E.T." and "The Goonies." It's laugh-out-loud funny with a tone reminiscent of "Austin Powers" and recent horror-comedy smash "Cocaine Bear."

OUR STORY

Bright Eye Pictures' The Legend of El Chupacabra is the brainchild of writer, director, producer Rob Mabry, a San Antonio filmmaker. The film features an all-Texas cast and crew and was filmed entirely in San Antonio and the surrounding Texas hill country.

The Chupacabra creature and practical effects are the work of Sergio Guerra, a Texas-based creature FX artist known for his appearance on season one of SyFy's "Face Off." The visual effects team from Austin's RoninFilm, led by Peter Hyoguchi, contributed visual effects created using Unreal Engine 5.

This goofy horror-comedy features a cast of over 50 performers and extras. It's an ambitious, ultra-low budget movie filmed on location and in-studio with top notch comedic performances from an up-and-coming cast.

Presley Weber as Bailey Bell

Presley Weber is a veteran of the Texas Indie film scene. She recently picked up the Best Actress award for her role in the sci-fi short Fire Sky Creek, a 48-Hour Film project.

Sam Peirce as Pete Mackey

Sam Peirce is a comedian and writer known for his knack for playing nerds in previous Bright Eye Pictures' short films including "The Tuckering" and "Summer of '82." He is a fixture in the Austin sketch comedy and improv scene.

Aiden Figueroa as Danny Morales

Aiden Figueroa is an Austin-based actor-comedian in his second year of conservatory at the Carol Hickey Acting Studio. He's a fearless comedic performer on stage and screen.

DIRECTOR, Rob Mabry

Rob Mabry is a writer, director producer who makes films that make people laugh. He has written and directed over twenty short films and web series screened in film festivals around the world.

After honing his craft writing and directing short films, Mabry decided the time was right to live out his lifelong dream of making a feature-length comedy film. Inspired by the favorite movies of his youth in both the comedy and sci-fi/horror genres, he set out to make a laugh-filled creature-feature filled with a cast of laughable, lovable goofballs.

He cites the joy of an audience reaction as his motivation. "There is no greater feeling than sitting in a crowded theater, listening to an audience howl with laughter at the words you've written and performances you've captured on film. That's why I made this movie," Mabry explained.
